The Travis Community Consortium (TCC) has proudly supported Travis Air Force Base (AFB) and its vital role in national defense since 2003. Representing Solano County, its seven cities, the Solano Economic Development Corporation, the Travis Regional Armed Forces Committee, and our private and community partners, the TCC works to raise public awareness of Travis AFB's strategic military value and advocate for the resources necessary to sustain national security. Our efforts have resulted in significant base improvements and earned us a trusted role as a consistent advocate for Travis AFB and its mission.

Over the years, our collaborative efforts have led to significant improvements at Travis AFB, ensuring our Airmen & families are well-equipped and supported to fulfill their missions. We have actively engaged with local business leaders, civic officials, and elected representatives at the state and federal levels to secure funding for essential military construction projects. Our unwavering commitment has earned our community's respect, reinforcing the TCC's role as a steadfast advocate for the base and its missions.

In today's geopolitical environment, where Great Power competition shapes national security priorities, our focus remains on enabling our nation, this community, and our military partners to thrive in Solano County. The TCC is committed to partnering with community stakeholders to revive Northern California's heritage of defense manufacturing and strengthen the defense industrial base, establishing Solano County as the National Security Intermodal Epicenter for the West Coast.

With the opportunity to establish a new Solano Shipyard in southeastern Solano County, the TCC looks forward to affording the same level of support and advocacy to this transformative project. We recognize the strategic importance of enhancing our nation's shipbuilding capabilities on the West Coast and the economic vitality such a complex would bring to Solano County, including job creation, increased economic activity, and the development of a skilled workforce—all while preserving the mission and Airmen at Travis AFB.

The TCC's extensive experience advocating for defense-related initiatives, which has led to significant improvements at Travis AFB, uniquely positions us to support the development of the shipbuilding complex. Our established relationships with military leadership, government officials, and community stakeholders enable us to champion projects that bolster national security and local economies.

Additionally, we are excited to support and advocate for the return of related research and development, repair, and training maritime efforts to locations such as Mare Island in connection with this new shipbuilding initiative. These efforts are integral to the broader success of our community, the shipbuilding complex, and our mission to enhance national security while promoting economic growth within Solano County.

TCC's dedication to supporting defense initiatives is rooted in our profound respect for the men and women who serve our nation and our recognition of the critical infrastructure that supports their missions. We believe the prospective shipbuilding complex aligns with our mission to enhance national security and promote economic growth within Solano County.

We welcome the opportunity to collaborate on initiatives that strengthen national defense and promote economic prosperity in Solano County. Together, we can honor our commitment to those who serve by supporting the long-term vitality of the industrial base that underpins our national security.
